Amazing Health Benefits of Eating Dried Fruit

Helps to prevent cancer

They are rich in antioxidants and phytonutrients which prevents the activity of cancer-causing cells.

Fight against stress and depression

Dried fruits are very effective in the battle against depression and stress. They also improve brain health and memory.

Keeps skin healthy

Incorporating more dried fruit in diets can also keep skin looking fresh and healthy. Dried mangoes provide omega 3 and other fatty nutrients that help improve skin quality. Raisins have resveratrol, which is a natural skin-aging inhibitor.

Improves heart health

Dried fruit can also improve heart health. An ounce of dried fruit contains more antioxidants and fiber than one ounce of fresh fruit. These components are essential parts in keeping your heart healthy.

Dried Fruit is Loaded With Micronutrients, Fiber and Antioxidants

One piece of dried fruit contains about the same amount of nutrients as the fresh fruit, but condensed in a much smaller package. By weight, dried fruit contains up to 3.5 times the fiber, vitamins and minerals of fresh fruit. Therefore, one serving can provide a large percentage of the daily recommended intake of many vitamins and minerals

Usage:

Ready to eat

Can be used with other products and helps increase the deliciousness such as oats, cereals ...
